“ I just want to tell the McGinnis' that I am very, very sorry for their loss. George was a wonderful stepfather and I am going to really miss our talks. He has been in my corner through thick and thin and never judged. He was so understanding and caring. One thing I will miss the most is his sense of humor. He kept me laughing. I know he is in Heaven with Momma and that he is healed. That is comforting. I am sure he approved of his memorial right down to the bagpipes. Perfect! will miss you, George!

“ A friend is someone who loves you and you love back, warts and all. A friend is closer to you (in a lot of cases) than family members. A friend is someone who gets in the dirt and helps you plant your garden, who discusses flowers and plants (not because it is his interest, but because it is yours). A friend shows up with a chalk line to make sure your rows are straight! Your farm is top notch! A friend is someone who is at ease with you or your husband and both of us love and respect him very much. We will miss Gorgeous George (my nickname for him) very much. Our house is sad tonight at the finality of the loss we feel. It is hard to comprehend, hard to wrap your brain around. It also should be a warning to those of us left behind that our time is short. We need to love and enjoy each other. I don't have a clue what the memorial service will say, but what I will say is this, "George McGinnis was/is a good friend." Just because he is not here physically, does not mean I won't talk with him or think of him. He was loved. He will be missed. He impacted our lives for the better. I know tonight as he sits in heaven with Jesus that he would not change places with us because he is not in pain, his heart is healed, his struggles over and he is hearing "You've run a good race, did a fine job." Our hearts are broken tonight and heavy from the loss. RIP George McGinnis, because of Jesus and the cross we are sure that we will see each other again. You are/were a great "brother" to both of us.
