“ Dan has always been one of my favorite people. He was always so fair, honest, and willing to listen. Dan genuinely cared about people and he cared about the company he worked for. People could tell from the way he lived his life that he was a good Christian, family man. I feel blessed to have known him as a co-worker and blessed to have known him as a friend. He will be missed. May God bless his family and friends.

“ I used to love going over to Pops when I was younger because that meant I got the chance to go fishing with him, ride the tractor, and he even tried to teach me how to shoot a gun and made me feel like I was a real professional when I actually shot the target he drew for me. As I got older, though, I realized I just loved being in his presence. Seeing how excited he would get talking about hunting and how much his face lit up when he was surrounded by family. It makes me happy and gives me comfort to know just how excited he had to have been getting to see all of his loved ones in heaven that he has missed just as much as we miss him. Till we meet again, I love you Pop.
