Animals don't have a voice, so you'll never stop hearing mine

Beautiful.

“ I can't recall exactly when we all moved to Hagwood Road and my family and the Davis family became next door neighbors, but I have known them as long as I can remember. I cherish such wonderful memories growing up next door to them. They were always more than neighbors... they were, and still are, family. As is life, paths lead us away from our childhood homes. As an adult, I did not keep in touch with Wayne and Joyce as I did with Julie and the boys. However, one thing has remained unchanged from my youth until today, Wayne was a good man, who loved and was loved in return.

As is always the case in times like this, everyone will have their own remembrances. These are but a few of mine.

I remember Wayne's infectious laugh. The type of laugh that bubbled up through his body, made his eyes twinkle and caused everyone to join in- whether we understood why we were laughing or not! He was always quick with a smile and a helping hand. Wayne was never too busy to throw up his hand and wave, to say hello and ask how you were. He was always there to help out my family when my dad had to work out of town. Wayne was a warm, selfless person who had an sincere, undying love for his family, his church and his friends. He worked hard and provided well for those he loved. He enjoyed life. He was well respected and earnestly trusted. He was well liked, genuine and was a gentleman. My life was blessed by knowing him.

We, on earth, mourn a funny, loving and caring husband, father, grandfather, brother, uncle and friend who was robbed by Alzheimers. Heaven celebrates the homecoming of an angel, healed in body and mind, who is surrounded by all those he loved who went before. I have no doubt Justin was the first to embrace him and they are now inseparable.

I send all my love and comfort to Joyce, Julie, Jack, Steve, Nickolas, Noah, Ashley, Bill and all his family; the friends who loved Wayne and all those who had their lives touched by him. May God bring you peace and your memories bring you happiness. As for me, I sit quietly and hear Wayne's infectious laugh followed by all of heaven joining in. I smile.

*With all my love,
Cindy Thompson Visser*
