“ Today is the first time I've ever read through these memories for no other reason other than I still find it almost impossible to read through without asking myself inside, " why Leslie? Why my baby sister whose life had already, so young, proven to be a real life battlefield?!" While this was true, Leslie never accepted a victim mentality, nor accepted excuses from those she loved... Especially me..., she never would allow me to cut myself short by cutting corners, or minimizing or trivializing, what I now know to be, worthy of a head on collision and knocked out of my way of success and peace and happiness.. to be my younger sister, most of the time, as we'd become adults, she took the big sister role, to which she possessed wisdom and insight and understanding way beyond her years. Leslie is so missed every single day.. I miss you sis and life is so much more mundane without you here... I love you Hoslee!!

“ Richard, Karen and Family, you know we feel your pain after the loss of our son, Mack, six years ago. No words can ease what you are feeling. Leslie fought a long, hard battle and now she is with the angels. We will continue to pray for comfort for your family. I know its not supposed to happen like this, a parent loosing a child, but God needed them more than we do. Love to you and yours. Sandra and Wiley Gibson
